

DRAW THE LINE ON UNITARIANS

National Federation of Churches Expected to Give Some Reasons for Excluding Delegates from the Conference.

The Executive Committee of the National Federation of Churches will meet this afternoon, and some statement may be made officially by the committee in regard to the exclusion of the Unitarian delegates from the conference.

The delegates will hold a series of meetings in this city next month, and about seven hundred delegates have been named, representing some 15,000,000 of church members. Acting under the general notice of a conference, the Unitarians named Dr. Edward Everett Hale, Chaplain of the United States Senate, the Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, President of the American Unitarian Association, and John D. Long, former Secretary of the Navy.

Since the election of these three representatives the Rev. Dr. Sanford, General Secretary of the Conference, has sent to the Unitarian Headquarters in Boston a letter stating that it has been decided to restrict the invitations to the conference. It was a policy was the secretary had of selling the Unitarians that they were not wanted and could not come into the movement to show that Protestantism is not divided, but can take some harmonious action.

The meetings are not called to form any organic union, and the Unitarians, having the idea that they were included in the general call, sent out to Protestant denominations the Massachusetts Unitarians selected as delegates.

The action in barring them, it is said, brings the Unitarians and the Unitarians into a sharper clash than ever before.

WOMAN WANTS INJURED KILLED

Miss Helen Hall Thinks Human Beings Should Be Put Out of Misery in the Same Way as Animals Are Treated.

(Special to The Evening World.)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—At the meeting of the American Humane Society yesterday, Miss Helen Hall, of Cincinnati, endeavored for two hours to get the endorsement of the society to the proposition that persons hopelessly injured or dying in agony of incurable diseases should be put to death by means of an anesthetic. The society would not approve of the plan, although several lady members advocated it. The doctors, with a few exceptions, were against the proposition.

Miss Hall pleaded for the same humanity that was extended to maimed or wounded animals who were put out of their misery with despatch. She pictured the agony of the engineer who, beneath the wreck of his burning train, is slowly burned to death. "I would have a merciful death by an anesthetic meted out not only to victims of train wrecks, but to persons dying of consumption, cancer, hydrophobia or lockjaw," said Miss Hall. "For the last two years I have always carried a phial of chloroform with me when riding on trains for use in case of emergency."

Miss M. Totten, of Washington, supported Miss Hall, but the motion was ruled out of order by Dr. William O. Stillman, of Albany, who said that the articles of incorporation of the society confined its attention to cases of cruelty to animals and children. Dr. Stillman said that in his thirty years' experience as a physician he had seen many apparently hopeless cases that had ultimately recovered.

"BUSTER" SAVES THREE IN A DAY

Wears a New Collar Now for Preventing Persons from Being Crushed Under Trains at Elizabeth.

"Buster," a Boston bull terrier, who keeps volunteer watch over the patrons of the Pennsylvania Railroad at the Elizabeth, N. J., station, is proudly wearing a new collar to-day, which he earned as a testimonial to his prowess as a life saver.

His "red letter" day began yesterday when an intoxicated passenger lurched out of the waiting room and tried to board a train just moving out of the station.

"Buster" grabbed him by the collar and dragged him back with such force that he laid at about flat on the platform. The man realized what the dog had done and pressed a five dollar bill into the hand of "Frank" Measer, the news agent and "Buster's" owner. "Get him a new collar," he said. "He knows more than I do."

Later in the day "Buster" dragged a little girl from the platform's edge as an express train thundered in. His day's work ended with the rescue of a bridegroom who in fleeing from a shower of rice all but fell off the platform under the wheels of the approaching train.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 12.—Wholesale merchants here are returning against men and women of Louisville by the Federal Grand Jury for sending what is known as pictorial post cards through the mails.

Several indictments have already been returned and one conviction made. The card in question showed a woman looking back over her shoulder at a man who had fallen and a young woman climbing a fence and displaying her hosiery.

MEN'S NECKWEAR 25c

Value 50c to 1.00 Special to-morrow 25c

THIS special is for one day only, and we have two good reasons for putting a limit on this neckwear at 25c.

In the first place the value is so unusual that there won't be a necktie left at six o'clock to-morrow evening.

In the second place, no store can afford to sell 50c and 1.00 neckwear at 25c for more than one day.

It's the crowd we want—the volume of business—if there's any profit it will have to come out of the other men's furnishings we sell, and they, too, are all specially priced.

Now, to get into the meat of the nut—these scarfs are made of pure silk, and the styles and quality are exactly duplicates of those in demand at the men's specialty shops at 50c. to $1.00.

We have only four hundred dozen, including the French fold style, a number of wide English squares; these alone are made of last season's silks—all others are new.

Three hundred new patterns and all the plain shades and black are here for your choosing to-morrow—one day only—at 25c.
